

Are you having problems with a Western Australian Government agency or a local government (shire)?

If you can't fix it with them - talk to us.
We might be able to help you and it's free.

Who is the Ombudsman?

The Ombudsman is not connected to any government agency and is a neutral person who looks into complaints made by the public about government services.

The Ombudsman can also help government organisations to improve the way they run, by suggesting strong, positive changes.

What can we help with?

We can look into complaints about things that go wrong when you're dealing with:

- Western Australian Government agencies or departments;
- Local governments (shires); and
- Public schools, universities and TAFE colleges;

Firstly, you need to talk to the organisation involved. This is usually the best way to sort things out. If you still have a problem, then you can contact the Ombudsman.

How do you make a complaint?

1. Your complaint must be about something that has affected you personally.
2. You can call and talk with us first. Ring 1800 117 000 (toll free for country callers) or (08) 9220 7555.
3. We can help you put your complaint in writing or you can get someone else to help you.
4. Once we get your complaint, we will decide if it is something we can help you with. If we can't help, we will tell you who else might be able to.
5. To help you with your problem, we can tell the government organisation that they should fix it and make sure it doesn't happen again.
